

BME 2080

Experiential Learning Seminar

Ave Kludze

akk86

RWP Pitch

Biomedical Engineering (BME)
Cornell University

May 20th, 2021

Fast Facts!

- AEWs are a one-credit small group, active learning session led by trained undergraduate students
- AEWs are designed to be collaborative, and they can allow people to meet new classmates through a community of students
- Students who enroll in AEWs 'outperform their peers' and gain further insight into the course material

The Academic Excellence Workshop Program is sponsored by John A. Swanson '61, BME '62, MS ME '63.

Roles

- Effective public speaking
- Facilitating group activities
- Encouraging and supporting teamwork and collaborative efforts
- Learning from one's peers
- Create PowerPoints and worksheets
- Understanding and effectively responding to different communication and learning styles
- Assign grades based on S/U

Stakeholders

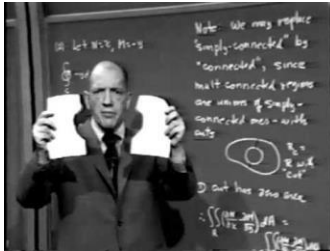

- Students
 - "The amount I'm learning from it is noticeable. Also, it is kinda fun."
- Co-facilitator
 - Facilitators works in pairs of two
 - 'Safety-net' for new facilitators
- AEW Team/Community
 - General meetings and trainings

Impact/Importance

Professional Development

Learning Styles

Communication skills